5. Providing the personal data is voluntary, but necessary for the provision of the Services. Fitatu does not process sensitive personal data.
6. Fitatu processes the personal data of Users, where it is necessary to provide the Services and contact the User.
7. The User may grant additional consent to processing of his or her personal data by Fitatu where it is necessary for the direct marketing of Fitatu’s Services or other marketing purposes, as well to acquiring commercial information or a newsletter.
8. The User can decide to what extent his or her personal data will be used. In particular, the User may submit a declaration of intent on withdrawing consent to process his or her personal data for the marketing purposes and to receive commercial information or a newsletter.
9. The User will have the right to update or modify his or her personal data, to permanently suspend the processing and delete the data, in particular if they are incomplete, out of date, incorrect or have been collected in violation of the provisions of law or are no longer necessary for the purpose for which they were collected. Any changes to the User’s personal data may be made in particular by submitting a proper statement of intent to the address of Fitatu.
10. Fitatu reserves the right to refuse to delete User data, if their possession is necessary in order to pursue claims, or if it is required by applicable laws and regulations.
11. The personal data collected by Fitatu are directly accessed by authorised personnel or associates that have been granted an appropriate power of attorney.

12. The User's personal data may be made available to entities entitled to receive them on basis of applicable laws and regulations, and in particular the judicial authorities.
13. Fitatu acknowledges that it is processing User's personal data in accordance with the Act on the Protection of Personal Data of 29 August 1997, and that it uses technical and organisational measures to ensure the protection of the data, and in particular to protect the personal data of contracting parties from being released to unauthorised entities, loss or damage.

FITATU COOKIE POLICY

1. Fitatu does not collect any information automatically, with the exception of information contained in cookie files.
2. Cookies represent IT data, in particular text files that are stored on the User's device and are intended for the use by the Fitatu website. Cookies typically contain the name of a website from which they are derived, their retention time on the end device and a unique number.
3. The entity that is providing cookies files to the User's device is Fitatu.
4. Cookies are used to:
 - adapt content on the Website to the User's preferences and to optimise the use of the websites; in particular, these files can identify the User's device and view the web page adapted to his or her individual needs;
 - produce statistics that can help you understand how the User use web pages, which helps improve their structure and content;
 - maintain a session of a logged User (after logging in) without the need to log on to the Service again.
5. Fitatu uses two main types of cookies: "session" cookies and "persistent" cookies. "Persistent" cookies remains on the User's device until deleted by the User, where the parameters of cookies set out a final expiry date. "Session" cookies are temporary and are stored in the User's device until the Service is no longer used (i.e. until logging out of the Service or disabling the software – web browser).
6. Fitatu has the following types of cookies:
 - "functional" cookies, which serve to "remember" the User's settings and customised interface, e.g. the selected language or region of origin, size of font, appearance of the website, etc.;
 - "performance" cookies, to collect information about how Fitatu website is used;
 - "advertising" cookies, providing User with advertising content better tailored to their interests;
 - "necessary" cookies, which enables the use of the services that are available in the store, such as authentication cookies used for services that require authentication in the store;
 - cookies used to ensure security, for example, used to detect fraud in the authentication in the store.
7. Most web browsers (software for using web sites) by default allow cookies to be saved on the User's device. Settings in this area can only be changed by the Users, and can be changed at any time, particularly through automatically blocking cookies in the web browser settings, or displaying information each time they enter the User's device. Detailed information on how the computer data are used is available in the browser settings.

8. Fitatu states that limiting the use of cookies may affect some functionalities available on the internet page.
9. Cookies placed on the User's device and the Fitatu website may be used by the Fitatu's partners and cooperating advertisers, also in the scope of promotion and marketing..
10. If you would like more extensive information on the data, please refer to the "Help" menu in the web browser.
